

THE SUPREME COURT of OHIO

The Harmony of Music and the Law

HON.
MELODY J.
STEWART

JUSTICE
THE SUPREME COURT OF OHIO

MONDAY 1 PM
FEBRUARY 10

BLACK HISTORY MONTH CELEBRATION

Music is universal in our lives. Music comes to us in different forms. Certain aspects of music are more desirable to some people than to others. Music can be a tool to help us learn.

The same is true of the law.

The law is also a constant in our lives. It comes to us in different forms, and some are appreciated in ways that vary from person to person.

Knowing about the law – and how it works – supports our understanding of society, and our place in it.

Melody Stewart, the first African American woman elected to the Supreme Court of Ohio, studied music long before she became a lawyer, law professor, judge, and now a justice, and music has remained an important part of her life. Justice Stewart's knowledge of law and music often intertwine, and she uses her musical background to aid her legal work.

Join Justice Stewart for the Supreme Court's annual Black History Month celebration on February 10 as she delivers an insightful presentation on music and the law.
